1. [redacted] of ONE and I called upon Sen. McClellan (D., Ark.) to secure his impressions from his recent trip to Western Europe and the Middle East. In the course of this discussion the Senator stated that he had been very cordially and helpfully treated [redacted] at several stops; that he had received very general and adequate information from them [redacted]

[redacted] The Senator's reaction was very friendly, and he discussed with us at some length his meeting with Premier Nasser in Cairo. He stated that he returned with the firm impression that even if it took 100 years the Arabs were dedicated to driving the Israelis from their country. He stated that Nasser had insisted that his recent arms deal was purely for defense and that he would not entertain a Communist mission in Egypt. However, Sen. McClellan felt himself at a loss to explain how the Egyptians would learn how to utilize these weapons without Communist assistance. The Senator stated that Nasser told him that he hoped to lead Egypt to complete independence without any foreign domination; that the Egyptians would follow a leader; and that if Nasser did not supply that leadership eventually the Communists would do so and take over the country from within. [redacted] will make a report on the substantive aspects of our meeting to ONE and presumably to OCI also.
